These two facts do not make Vepal's life easy. But they do make it interesting.

It was Commander Vepal who discovered the continuing orders from Headquarters, far back in old and moldy archives, which directed those of the Troop who had survived the collapse of the old universe to locate, in the new universe, the proper authority to which they might, with honor, offer their allegiance, and their skills.

Because of this discovery, Vepal is made ambassador, while the rest of the Troop continues to prey on those it finds

In pursuit of his duty, he and his small delegation put into Inago Station, where there's a military job fair in full swing.
